SCOTTISH EXECUTIVE

Voluntary Health Scotland is supported by
NHS Health Scotland and the Scottish Executive Health Department

Join the voluntary health network

Voluntary Health Scotland is the first and only network of its kind in the UK. VHS is committed to developing strategic partnerships between the voluntary sector and health services at all levels, in line with the principles contained in the Scottish Compact, the partnership agreement between government and the voluntary sector.

Joining Voluntary Health Scotland

VHS is a membership organisation, with 300 members from across Scotland.

Any voluntary or community group organisation or group with an interest in improving health and health care in Scotland may join VHS. Members pay an annual subscription fee, currently £20 per annum, for a variety of benefits:

- The interactive VHS website – www.vhscotland.org.uk – offering opportunities for exchange of best practice and space for promotion of members' activities and events
- Regular members' briefings – analysing progress in Scottish Executive and NHS policies, with space for contributions from groups and individuals
- Access to consultation opportunities and to working groups on emerging health policy
- Discounted rates at VHS seminars and events

To join Voluntary Health Scotland, complete the form overleaf.

The strength of Voluntary Health Scotland resides in its members, who work to improve health and address inequalities in communities, support people affected by illness and disability and enable the voices of local people to be heard by health policy makers in Scotland.

Scotland's voluntary health sector:

Numbers about 1600 groups and organisations

Employs 14,000 people
